Marco Polo Maps are famous for the high quality of cartography in their Country, City and Holiday Maps.

I bought the map to help with planning our vacation to South Africa. I looked at the routes on the map and got a good idea of where we should stay for the night and booked my hotels accordingly. Besides this map, I did use GoogleMaps to get some estimate of drive time between destinations. We had ordered a GPS unit for South Africa so I wasn't too worried about using this map once over there but our GPS malfunctioned and I was forced to use this map the whole trip. Right off the bat we found out that the Marco Polo map does not bother to indicate what is a paved route and what is not and we found ourselves on some rather bad roads that could have been avoided. Each night I would check with locals about my planned route for the next day and they would just laugh at me and my big fancy map that said nothing. We ended up putting on a lot of extra miles and hours having to change our route to get to pre-booked guest houses thanks to this ill conceived map. Not only does it fail to have a legend for paved/unpaved roads but they don't feel the need to label all the roads either - we were guessing and flying by the seat of our pants most of the time using this map. Guess this map will make you feel like a real explorer because you will be lost most of the time so I gave it 1 star because it lived up to it's Marco Polo explorer image. Wish I could give negative stars!

Nice maps for hunting Africa.

HUGE Map. Difficult to manipulate but easy to read.
