Customer Reviews

I bought several word search books for my elderly grandmother. This one was one of the best versions for three reasons. 1) The spiral binding allows it to lay flat. This might sound like a simple thing, but imagine that you're sitting in an easy chair or in bed, with arthritic hands, and not much grip strength. The thick books with normal paperback binding are VERY difficult to hold open that way, and even harder to coordinate circling the words while holding the book open. This makes it so easy. Flip open the book to the page you want, and it stays there! And it stays open to the puzzle you're working on, so it's ready to go after a nap or meal. 2) Big print. I'm not sure why more puzzle books don't come with this option. Most other word search books have tiny print, and the letters blur together for folks with poor vision. 3) Not too difficult. Again, some books are too difficult for the older folks in our life. This seems to strike at a good balance for my 85+ year old grandma.

Bought for my elderly father who never did word search puzzles. He previously did the Jumble in the newspaper and loved his word a day calendar, but with his memory going he was getting frustrated with those activities. I first bought him a large print crossword book and it was too difficult for him. Tried the Word Search and now he's hooked. We give him a highlighter so he doesn't have to circle.

Although he doesn't unscramble the unused letters, he thoroughly enjoys the puzzles and works on them daily.

I was under the impression that these books were designed for the elderly, and that's also what you'll find in the introduction; however, look at the fine print and you'll see that these are children's puzzles. While they are too easy in general, there are some challenging words and each puzzle has a hidden message (and those can be a bit of a challenge).

Book was "too large" and the puzzles were oddly shaped making it confusing.

My elderly mother enjoys these spiral bound large print books. Like sending her them

My 80 year old mother loves these puzzles. They help her to try and keep her mind sharp. The large print and the spiral binding make it easy for her to use.

I bought this for my grandma who is 91 years old and she absolutely loved it.

Great book. I like the wire binding. Nice thick paper. Large print.
